The Chen Pao (晨報) is a pro-Nanking Government publication, and is an organ of General Chiang Kai Shek. Its policy is definitely anti-Japanese. As far as Britain and the U.S.A. are concerned, this paper maintains an indifferent attitude until the policies of Britain and the U.S.A. conflict with those of the Nanking Government. Otherwise it is considered as a fair and certainly authoritative publication. Ho Si Oo (何西堃) is the editor-in-chief and Mai Kee Fong (麥季方), a departmental chief in the Educational Bureau, is the manager. Wong Siao Lan (王曉籟), Chairman of the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, is the chairman of the Board of Directors, and the paper is registered in his name. Regarding the ownership, as General Chiang Kai Shek is reported to pay $3,000 per month towards its support, he is the actual owner, although a number of shares are held by ~~a number of~~ local merchants. The paper prints a morning edition of 20,000 copies and an evening edition of 10,000.

The Shun Pao (申報), established in 1872, is the oldest Chinese daily newspaper in Shanghai. It is usually pro-Wanking but occasionally criticizes the government and may be considered independent, as it is not subsidized by the government or any particular group. It is anti-Japanese but adopts an independent attitude towards the policies of Great Britain and the U.S.A. except that in all disputes between China and Britain or China and the U.S.A., the Chinese point of view is naturally emphasized. It is generally considered to be authoritative and fair. The capital of the paper is given at $1,500,000. 100,000 copies used to be printed daily but since the Sino-Japanese hostilities, only 80,000 copies have been printed. Chang Yun Woo (張應如) is the chief editor, and the proprietor and managing-director of the paper is See Liang Zey (史量才), the chairman of the Nantao Municipal Council. The Sin Wan Pao (新南報) is the most influential Chinese daily newspaper in Shanghai. It is regarded by the Chinese community as an independent organ chiefly devoted to commerce and its revenue is chiefly derived from advertisements. It is anti-Japanese, but its attitude towards Britain and the U.S.A. is for ^{the most} part impartial. It is considered fair, authoritative and conservative. Li Hao Zou (李浩然) is the editor-in-chief. The capital of this paper is given as $1,200,000 and most of the shares are in the hands of Shu Liang Bay (史量才), managing director of the Shun Pao (申報). About 120,000 copies are printed daily of which 40,000 copies are distributed in Shanghai. An evening edition of 10,000 copies is also printed, but this is not in great demand and free copies are distributed to the leading Chinese hotels, etc.

The editor is Pen Kung Pi (潘公展), a well known journalist. The capital of the paper is $500,000 and the shares are owned by a syndicate formed in 1930 by Chang Tse Ping (張季平) who is the Managing-Director of the "China Press", a foreign daily newspaper and the "China Evening News", a Chinese evening newspaper, besides being Managing-Director of the Shih Shih Hsin Pao. Dr. Wallington Kee (Chinese Minister to France) is a member of the financial syndicate. 20,000 copies are printed daily.

The China Critic is a well known Chinese controlled periodical in the English language, and its policy is pro-Wanking Government. It is not subsidized by the Government or any particular group. It is definitely anti-Japanese, and formerly was anti-Britain and anti-U.S.A., but now has adopted a more moderate attitude towards these two countries. It is considered fair and authoritative, containing as it does comments upon politics and movements of major importance. The activities of overseas Chinese are also reported. The editor is Kwei Chun Chu and the paper is controlled by the members of the staff who are also the shareholders, and it is understood that each of them is willing to contribute towards paying expenditure in excess of the returned. According to a responsible member of the staff a small profit is made from the sale of the paper, although the approximate average sale is only 6,000 copies per issue. The paper receives the moral support of Mr. Sun Fo, the President of the Legislative Yuan, although it is not known whether he gives financial support to the paper or not.

The Chinese Republic is a periodical devoted to comments on the current political and social affairs of China. Generally it may be regarded as independent. It is subsidized by the Canton group. The paper is definitely anti-Japanese, but moderate views are expressed regarding the policies of England and the U.S.A. Articles are published obviously for the one purpose of attempting to induce England, the U.S.A. and Soviet Russia to take action against Japan. The paper may be regarded as authoritative and fair. The editor is Bing Shuey Lee, a well known local journalist. The circulation of the paper is very low and although no exact figures can be obtained, does not exceed 4,000 copies per issue. The revenue therefore does not cover the expenditure, but the deficit is covered by the subsidy received from Hu Han Min, veteran politician and Chen Chi Tang, Canton warlord, and the paper serves as their propaganda organ.

The People's Tribune is a propaganda organ of the Nanking Government and directly subsidized by the Government. It is definitely anti-Japanese and its policy may be considered as anti-extraterritoriality not specifically anti-U.S.A. or anti-Britain. The paper is authoritative and generally fair but there is a tendency to make sweeping statements which are not justified by the facts particularly where foreign interests or local government are concerned. The editor is Tsiang Loang Li. The shares are stated to be in the hands of a few prominent merchants, but the publication is generally referred to as Wang Ching Wei's paper. Wang Ching Wei is the Minister of Foreign Affairs and the President of the Executive Yuan, and it appears more likely that the paper is owned and controlled by a few members of the Government.

Special Branch 34/14

Subject (in full)..... The Nanyang News Agency.

Made by D.I. Kuh Pao-hwa. Forwarded by DBRn D.I.

The office of the Nanyang News Agency, is located in Room 38 of the Dah Yieh Lodging House (大益旅館), 493 Rue Auguste Bonoe, French Concession, and is owned by one Chow Tsz Zung (周志仁), age 25, native of Footung, a Kuomintang member, who was formerly an officer attached to the No. 2 District Kuomintang Branch.

This agency commenced functioning on May 15, 1932 suspended activity on June 8, 1932. During that period Chow endeavoured to register his agency with the local Kuomintang Headquarters and demanded Woo³ Sien³, Chief of the Propaganda Department, to issue him a subsidy alleging that the Chinese Communist Party was willing to offer a monthly allowance of $150 to the agency. This request was, however, ignored. Later a thorough investigation into the moral status of Chow Tsz Zung was conducted by the local Kuomintang Headquarters and it was found that the object of his establishing a news agency was to obtain money by fraudulent means.

It is reported that Chow Tsz Zung is at present in Chingkiang. There is no evidence forthcoming to show that either he or the agency is connected with the Chinese Communist Party.

Notes on Chinese News Agencies in Shanghai 3414
4-17-32

The Kuo Min News Agency (國民新聞社), No. 1c Kiukiang Road, established in June, 1927, is a semi-official organ of the Chinese Government. The funds for its establishment were donated in 1927 by a number of Kuomintang officials, including Dr. C. C. Wu, then Minister of Foreign Affairs, and Quo Tai Chi, ex-Commissioner of Foreign Affairs in Shanghai.

Li Zay (李才), the present Manager of this agency, is an Oversea Cantonese who was an associate of Eugene Chen when the latter was Editor and Proprietor of the "Peking Gazette", an English language paper in Peking.

This agency is the largest enterprise of its kind in this country. Its employees include many persons of superior education and its functions include preparing and furnishing to local foreign newspapers news favourable in a general way to China and in particular to the National Government. The service to the Chinese newspapers is gratis. All the expenses of this agency are at present paid by T. V. Soong, Minister of Finance.

The Kuo Wen News Agency (國聞通信社), No. 50 Tien Loh Paung (天樂坊) off Bubbling Well Road, is the oldest news agency in Shanghai. It was established in March, 1922 by a number of politicians in Peking and was very influential when the Anfu clique was in power at Peking. Since the inauguration of the National Government at Nanking, the donations received by this agency have been reduced. It has consequently become inactive and does not supply much news to local newspapers. It is managed by Li Tse Kwan (李子寬), who is a member of the editorial staff of the "Min Kuo Jih Pao" which has ceased to publication.

This agency is closely connected with the "Dah Kung Pao" (大公報), an influential Chinese daily newspaper at Tientsin.

The Sin Sun News Agency (新華通信社), No. 280 Shanfung Road, established in August, 1930, is a commercial news agency.

The capital of this agency was raised by Wang Yen Soong (王延松), a member of the committee of the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce, the Chinese Ratepayers Association and the Shanghai Special District Kuomintang. He is the proprietor of the Dah Sin (大新) Silk Store at the corner of Hankow Road and Fokien Road and one of the promoters of the Bank of Silk Industry.

Wang Siao Lan (王曉籟), Chairman of the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce, and several other members of the Chamber are also connected with this news agency.

Yen Hych Sun (嚴鶴亭), secretary of the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce, and brother of Yen Zung Yue (嚴慎予), the City Magistrate of Shanghai Hsien, is the Manager of this news agency.

The news supplied to the local Chinese newspapers comes chiefly from the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce, the Chinese Ratepayers Association and other commercial bodies in this locality.

It charges $30 per month for its news service.

The Sin Wan Pao, 新聞報, No. 19 Hankow Road, established in 1893, is the most influential leading Chinese newspaper in Shanghai. The staff of this paper are:

Waung Fah Chi 汪伯奇 General Manager.

Waung Chung Wei 汪仲章 (brother of Waung Pah Chi) Assistant Manager.

Li Hao Shan 李浩然 Editor-in-Chief.

The administration of this paper is different from that of other Chinese newspapers. All articles are first scrutinized by the Manager. before publication

The paper, which is regarded as a leading commercial publishing organ, derives its revenue chiefly from advertisements. The advertisement rates of this paper, and the Shun Pao, are the highest in Shanghai.

Leading articles are rarely published by this paper. Two years ago the majority of the shares of the Sin Wan Pao were held by Dr. Ferguson, an American citizen, and the concern was registered in the State of Delaware, U.S.A. Subsequently Dr. Ferguson sold his shares, for about $1,000,000, to a Chinese syndicate formed by Sze Liang Zay 史量才 (proprietor of the Shun Pao). Waung Pah Chi, who is also a shareholder of the Sin Wan Pao, at first opposed the transaction but his objections were eventually overcome by the new Board of Directors deciding to continue the existing rules of the administration.

Prior to the outbreak of the hostilities in Shanghai District, the circulation of the paper was about 120,000 per day. Owing to the suspension of railway traffic between Shanghai and Quinsan, the circulation was greatly reduced and at present it is less than 100,000 of which 40,000 are distributed in Shanghai.

The Shun Pao, 申報 - published at No. 24 Hankow Road, established in 1872, is the oldest Chinese daily newspaper in Shanghai. The staff of this paper are:

Sze Liang Zay 史量才 Proprietor and Managing-Director.
Chang Tso Ping 張竹平 (his brother-in-law) Manager.
Chang Yui Woo 張蔭和 Editor-in-Chief.

Prior to the Sino-Japanese hostilities in Shanghai District, over 100,000 copies were issued daily, but now only 80,000 copies are being issued. Of these 30,000 are sold in Shanghai.

As its business is prosperous, the Shun Pao as well as the Sin Wan Pao issues an annual bonus to its employees.

Both Sze Liang Zay and Chang Tso Ping are very influential in Shanghai. Mr. Sze is the Chairman of the Shanghai Chinese Press Association and is also connected with many local charitable institutions.

Chang Tso Ping is regarded as the Shanghai newspaper king. He is the Managing-Director of the China Press, a foreign daily newspaper; Chairman of the Board of Directors of the China Times, a Chinese morning paper; and is the publisher of the China Evening News.

The Min Kuo Jih Pao (Republican Daily News), 民國日報
No. 202 Shantung Road, established in 1915, is the official Kuomintang organ in Shanghai.

Prior to the overthrow of the Peking Government in 1927, Yeh Taho Chang (葉楚傖) and Zau Lih Tse (邵立子) were responsible for the publication of the paper, and, although donations were obtained from Canton, its financial condition was exceedingly unstable and its circulation very small. As its object at that time was to criticize and denounce the Peking Government, its Editor was summoned on several occasions before the (now defunct) Mixed Court, and on one occasion the paper was suspended for three days as a punishment.

After the inauguration of the National Government, both Yeh Taho Chang and Zau Lih Tse, who are members of the Central Executive, and Supervisory Committees, of the Kuomintang respectively, went to Nanking, and the management of the paper was handed to a committee of which Chen Teh Tseng (陳德徵) is Editor. Shortly afterwards the Shanghai District Court issued a notice announcing that it would not consider any notice valid unless it had appeared in the Min Kuo Jih Pao.
The income of the paper began to show improvement from that date. However, it is still depending upon a monthly subsidy from the Kuomintang. Its circulation is about 10,000 copies, most of which are for members of the Government, and Kuomintang organizations.

On January 9 the paper published a Tokyo telegram reporting the attempted assassination of the Japanese Emperor and used the heading: "It is unfortunate that the carriage following the Emperor was bombed and the culprit was at once arrested."
The Japanese alleged that the expression was an insult to the Mikado. As the Japanese Landing Forces threatened to take strong action against the paper, the office of the Min Kuo

by the proprietors 7/10/1919 Jih Pao was closed by the Police on January 26 by order of the Shanghai Municipal Council.

At the time of its closing, Zien Chong Zah 錢滄石
(Editor of the paper), Kwan Kiu An, 管久安 Li Tse Kwan 李子寬
and others were members of the committee of the Min Kuo Jih Pao.

On April 4 the Min Kuo Jih Pao published a notice in the Sin Wan Pao and other local newspapers announcing that the plant, furniture, etc. of the paper were sold, on April 1, to the Min Pao (Citizens Paper) (民報).

The Eastern Times, 時報 No. 708 Chekiang Road, established in 1904, is regarded a progressive Chinese daily newspaper. Its sales office is at No. 6a Shantung Road. The paper uses large characters and does not cater much for advertisement, although this is the chief source of revenue of most newspapers. Its proprietor is Waung Fah Wei, 黃伯惠 a returned student and an owner of real estate in Shanghai.

The Eastern Times has, besides other machines, a five-colour printing machine, which cost gold $150,000.00, and is the only machine of its kind in China. Mr. Wang, proprietor and Manager of the paper, often attends personally to mechanical repairs necessary to the machine. He is regarded by local journalists as an eccentric person. In 1930 he was carried off by armed abductors but was liberated by the Public Safety Bureau.

Chen Lang Hsueh 陳冷血 (an advisor to General Chiang Kai Shek) is the Editor-in-Chief but he does not attend to his duty daily. The Eastern Times does not publish leading articles. Its news columns are devoted extensively to sporting and social news. It publishes also a pictorial supplement twice a week. The circulation of the paper is about 45,000, half of which is distributed in Shanghai. This paper is a favourite among Chinese students.

Since the outbreak of hostilities in Shanghai, the paper has been publishing an afternoon edition with war pictures and when the fighting was at its height, its circulation reached 100,000 in Shanghai alone.

The China Times, 時事新報 No. 162 Shantung Road, established in 1908, is a Chinese daily newspaper.

In 1930 its plant was bought over by a syndicate formed by Chang Tso Ping 張竹平 who is now its Publisher, and Chairman of the Board of Directors.

Waung Ying Ping 汪英賓 is Editor-in-Chief, and Hsiung Siau Hao 熊少豪 is Manager.

Waung Ying Ping, a native of Anhui, was formerly Business Manager of the Shun Pao. He is a returned student and is regarded by his colleagues as an intelligent young journalist. Since he took over control of the China Times, he has introduced many reforms and the circulation of the paper has risen from 30,000 to 40,000.

Following the practice of foreign newspapers, the China Times publishes a leading article daily, and at regular intervals it issues supplements devoted to banking and investments, the motor car industry, tobacco, house-building, medical science, etc. It also gives close attention to social news. Its policy has been appreciated by a large number of its readers. However, its income is not sufficient to cover expenses.

Since the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese hostilities here, it has issued a second edition (extra) every afternoon.
